WHAT DO YOU THINK
Of a Merchant who Does Not Get any Business Because He Refuses to Advertise. Very Foolish!! Well Rather.

THE FIRST GUN FIRED.

McKinley and Hobart Ratified Last Night.

A STRONG LEAGUE CLUB WAS ORGANIZED.

Judge R. B. Carpenter, the Silver Tongued Orator of Los Angeles Made an Address.

The Campaign Opened at Berkeley.

The campaign was opened in Berkeley last evening as far as the Republicans are concerned. At the request of a large number of residents of Berkeley John W. Striker, a member of the Central Committee issued a call for a meeting to be held in Odd Fellows Hall last evening for the purpose of forming a club and listening to a speech by the Hon. R. B. Carpenter of Los Angeles.

In the early part of the evening bonfires were made on the open space near the Postoffice and the reports from anvil shots could be heard all over town as they came at short intervals.

At the hour announced for the opening of the meeting the hall commenced to fill up and shortly there was only standing room. Quite a number of ladies were present.

Mr. Striker called the meeting to order and Joseph McClain was selected to preside over the meeting.

Chairman McClain with that ease of manner for which he is noted in well chosen words stated the object of the meeting and then introduced the Hon. R. B. Carpenter who immediately stepped forward and commenced what proved to be a ringing speech for the Republican party and McKinley and Hobart, the chosen leaders.

He was listened to with very marked attention and received a great deal of applause for the happy hits during the progress of his speech. He was forcible and magnetic thus enthusing his audience to a high pitch.

The beginning of the formation of a club was made by electing Joseph Mc Clain as the permanent Chairman and Walter Grompertz as Secretary.

A committee of one from each ward was selected to prepare the necessary By-Laws for governing the club and to report at the next meeting. Those selected were, First Ward, A. L. Ott; Second Ward. E. J. Wickson; Third Ward, John M. Foy; Fourth Ward, E. Clarisy; Fifth Ward, H. D. Irwin; Sixth Ward, James Hamilton and Seventh Ward, Walter Heywood.

Many signed the roll last evening and the document will be placed where all desirous of signing can do so.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday evening at same hall, which will be duly announced in the daily papers.

McNeil-McDonald.

It was a very happy couple that emerged from St. Joseph's Church this morning at nine o'clock. The parties were J. D. McNeil and wife. Before going into the church Mrs. McNeil's name was Maggie McDonald, and she was one of Berkeley's fair daughters. Mr. McNeil, the groom resides at Los Angeles and carries on business at that place.

The interesting ceremony was performed by Father Phillips in a very impressive manner.

On reaching the sidewalk handfulls of rice were freely thrown over the newly wedded couple.

The bridesmaid was Miss Theresa McDonald, sister of the bride and J. J. Cameron of San Francisco was the best man. On completion of the service carriages were taken and the party proceeded to the residence of the bride's parents on Catherine street, where a wedding breakfast was awaiting.

The bride was dressed neatly, handsomely and with extra good taste. The happy moment made her eyes sparkle and the pretty dimples appeared to good advantage.

Mr. and Mrs. McNeil will leave for Los Angeles this evening where they will reside.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to return my thanks to the people of Berkeley, and particularly to the Order of Foresters, who were so kind to assist me when I needed it.

MRS. G. W. LONG.

WEDDING BELLS.

Ring Out For The Nuptials Of Mr. Thacher And Miss Blake.

Thacher--Blake.

Sherman Day Thacher and Miss Eliza Seely Blake were married last evening at the Blake home on Bancroft way. The ceremony was performed by President Kellogg of the University of California. Miss Ruth Willis of San Francisco was the maid of honor and William L. Thatcher of New York a brother of the groom, acted as best man. The Blake residence was decorated with pink sweet peas. After the ceremony the company went to the home of Anson Blake a brother of the bride, where an elaborate dinner was served.

Miss Blake is the only daughter of Charles T. Blake, a retired capitalist. She is one of Berkeley's fairest maidens. She graduated from the University in the class of '95. While in college she was a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta Fraternity, a well-known young ladies' society.

Mr. Thacher is a son of Professor Thomas A. Thacher of Yale. He graduated from Yale in 1883. After he left college he studied law, finally graduating from the Yale Law School class of '86. For a number of years he practiced law at his home, and, subsequently coming to California, located in Ojai valley, in Ventura county, where he has established a collegiate school for boys.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Thacher will return to Ojai valley where they will make their home.

FALSE FRIENDSHIP.

Claims Made by Will S. Green of Colusa.

THAT ARE NOT EASILY SUBSTANTIATED.

The True History of Know Nothingism In These United States.

A False Friendship.

Will S. Green, of the Colusa Sun, makes out that the Democratic party is a pretty old institution when he says in the Sun that

"The Democratic platform of 1356 contains a strong resolution denouncing the American Protective Association of that date, and the convention of 1896 will reaffirm it by a unanimous vote."

It is probable that the intelligent compositor slipped a figure "3" in where he should have had an "8."

There was only one "American Protective Association" in those days and that was the grand old Whig party, the originator of "Protection to American Industries," and which it bequeathed on its death bed to the Republican party, a fitting representative of the old-time opponent of the Democratic Party. In 1856 the "Know Nothings" in this State made both Whig and Democratic parties occupy a back seat for a year or so, and that is the party the Democracy of '56 denounced, and it was a party instituted and managed by leading men of the Democratic party, as nearly every Southern Democrat was a "Know Nothing." The leaders were the following Democrats who were prominent California politicians in those days:

Judge Terry, Milton S. Latham, Dr. S. B. McMeans, James Coffroth, Senator Gwin, Ben. McCullough, George Penn Johnson, Chas. Fairfax, Supreme Court Clerk, Dr. Aylett, Haggin & Tevis, and scores of others.

The party was born in New Orleans and the Southerners in this State did not want to see a Northern man holding office in California, so in union with the Southern Whigs they organized the Know-Nothing-Party to defeat John Bigler, who was a Pennsylvanian, and the Democratic candidate for Govenor, who was running for a second term, and to do it the Know Nothing State Convention in Sacramento nominated James Coffroth for Governor, but he declined, as he feared it would be charged that the Know Nothings was a Democratic Party, and then they nominated J. Neely Johnson a Kentucky Whig and Johnson was elected, and Bigler, the Northerner, was retired to private life.

The Know Nothings allowed none but Native Americans to join its Councils, while the American Protective Association makes no distinction as to nativity. The Democratic Party has always posed as a friend to the foreign element, but only to secure that vote but it has never been the true and sincere friend of the stranger in our land, but only apparantly so when he could be used.—Bridgeport (Cal.) FALSE ALARM.

There Will Be No Postoffice At Dwight Way.

No Sub-Station At Berkeley.

Postmaster McCarthy of Berkeley places no credence in the dispatch from Washington announcing that a sub station of the Berkeley Post Office is to be established at 2521 Shattuck avenue on August 1st. McCarthy stated yesterday that he had heard nothing whatever of the matter and no request had been made for a sub-station. No. 2521 Shattuck avenue is near Dwight way, but no one knows anything concerning the sub-station in that locality. At present there are four Post offies in Berkeley,—the main office at East Berkeley, one at South Berkeley known as Peralta, one at West Berkeley and one at Lorin.

Lorin

Miss J. Shaw, teacher in the Franklin School, East Oakland, who has been dangerously ill for sometime, has had a favorable change and is now getting better.

William Streib, who has been in the Shasta Mines, returned here on business.

The rumor, that Richards disposed of the Shasta mine and cleared out, is not true. Mrs. H. L. Baker, of Prince and Calais streets who is Vice-President of the Company, says that the mine is in good condition and has no connection with Richards private life.

Committed Suicide.

The San Francisco papers gave an an account this morning of the suicide of William Streib a barber in San Francisco and gave as a cause domestic troubles. As the wife lives in Lorin, her side of the story is published as given to a GAZETTE reporter this morning.

Our reporter interviewed Mrs. Streib whose husband committed suicide yesterday and she says in regard to the barber shop, that more than a dozen years ago Mr. Streib owned the barber shop under the Merchants' Exchange Building at San Francisco, but on account of his drinking propensities, he got into debt, and the Merchants' Exchange Association sold the place on account of indebtness.

At the sale, Mr. Finney bought one-half interest in the place and Mrs. Streib's mother purchased the other half interest, and it has been under Mr. Finney's management ever since and has afforded her a sufficient income to bring up a family of five children in a proper manner, one of them, a girl, being a graduate of the State University. The boys have, also, had a good education.

Streib abandoned his wife twelve years ago and she has not seen him since that time. He has never contributed a single penny towards the support of the family since he left his home. After the separation, Mrs. Streib moved to Lorin and has resided here ever since.

About the committing suicide, she says that Strieb went to an apothecary and asked for something to stop an intense internal pain which he had and some quinine pills were given to him and he was told not to drink anymore. Instead of following that advice, he continued his accustomed habits until the end came in his causing his own death.

Mrs. Streib refused to pay the funeral expenses because she did not think he was worthy of it.

Governor Budd's Condition.

Ugo Talbo of this city, who is a warm personal friend of Governor Budd, has just returned from a trip to Stockton where has been visiting the Governor. Mr. Talbo states that Budd's condition is quite serious and that there is no hope of him getting out and being able to attend to official business for five or six weeks at least. He is very irritable and will not talk politics.

PISTOL NOT RAZOR

A Colored Woman Fatally Shoots

ANOTHER WOMAN WHO HAD CALLED

Her To Task For Telling Tales About Her And Running Down Her Character.

Pistol Instead Of Razor.

As a result of gossip, Mrs. Amanda Calloway lies fatally wounded at the Receiving Hospital, while her former friend, Mary Wagner, occupies a prison cell, only awaiting the death of her victim to be charged with murder. Both are prominent members of colored society in Oakland, and the affair has created great excitement.

Shortly before 8 o'clock last evening Mrs. Amanda Calloway called at the home of P. Hill, the one-armed flagman for the Southern Pacific Company and asked to see his housekeeper. Hill lives in a little cottage on Jefferson near Second street, and when the woman entered he knew that trouble was brewing. With her came an unknown colored woman from Alameda.

At the door Mrs. Calloway said to Hill as she brushed by him, "I want to get at that woman and show her that she can't tell lies about my family." Then she ran into the kitchen, but not finding the object of her search, returned to the parlor.

In the meantime Hill had gone out into the back yard, where his housekeeper was splitting kindling wood and told her that Mrs. Calloway was looking for her. Nothing daunted, Mary Wagner went in to face the music, and according to Hill's statement, Mrs. Calloway opened the argument at once by accusing her of saying that Mr. Calloway was not the father of her children.

Words followed each other in quick succession, but instead of denying the statements, Mrs. Wagner reiterated them point blank. Then, it is claimed, Mrs. Callaway rolled up her sleeves, as if preparing for a fight, at the same time applying anything but choice language to her opponent.

With this the Wagner woman rushed from the room and returned with a pistol under her apron. Mrs. Calloway saw the weapon and started for the housekeeper, at the same time remarking: "I know you have a gun, but I'll make you eat it."

Then the Wagner woman backed into a corner and opened fire, shooting at least three shots at Mrs. Calloway. With a groan, the wounded woman rushed from the house and fell on the grass.

James Calloway, the husband, just then appeared on the scene and took charge of his wife, while Mary Wagner was turned over to Officer Powers. The third woman, who, with Hill, was the only other eye-witness of the shooting, beat a hasty retreat and has not yet been found.

At the hospital Drs. Johnson and Hamlin ascertained that the shooting will probably result in death, though there is a fighting chance for Mrs. Calloway's recovery. Probing located two of the bullets, one in the right shoulder and the other in the muscles of the abdomen. The third bullet, and the one which caused the most dangerous wound, penetrated the left breast and lodged in the lung.

The wounded woman did not lose consciousness, and shortly after being placed on the slab made the following dying statement to Detective Shorey: "My name is Amanda Calloway. Mary Wagner shot me three times because she said my children were not my husband's."

This is signed and witnessed by William Mingo, M. D. Bailey and Dr. Johnson.

After the wounded woman was attended to, Mary Wayner was taken to the hospital, where she was identified as the assailant. When asked if she shot Mrs. Calloway, she replied: "Yes, I shot her three times. She said she would make me prove what I said about her children, and when I said I would she rushed at me. Then I shot her."

James Calloway is a junk dealer, and the couple have three children. They live at 630 Brush street and have been residents of Oakland for many years.

Mary Wagner is also well known. About a month ago she was employed by Hill to keep house for him. She is not over 25 years of age and has generally been considered a quiet and respectable woman.

The feud dates back a few years ago, when both women attended the Sixth-street Baptist Church. They were then great friends, but over a small matter had a quarrel. At that time Hill was boarding with Mrs. Calloway, having some crockery ware of his own which was used generally by the household. When he left to keep house for himself he did not find all the dishes, and over this had a fuss with Mrs. Calloway.

Not long ago the wounded woman visited the the Hill dwelling and in some manner broke a cup. She was upbraided for it by Mary Wagner, and that increased the bad feeling.

THEY ARE ONE.

It Is Now Mr. And Mrs. Charles Byrant Of North Berkeley.

Bryant--Grindley.

At the residence of the bride's mother, 2415 Haste street, last evening Miss Lizzie M. Grindley was united in marriage to Charles R. Bryant by the Rev. J. Clarke Robbins of the North Berkeley Congregational Church. The time set for the wedding was 8:30. After the ceremony was over the invited guests set down to the wedding supper, prepared on the lower auditorium which had been handsomely decorated for the purpose with flowers and chinese lanterns. Soon after the couple proceeded to their new home on Rose street North Berkeley, which had been prepared for their reception.

The ceremony took place in the front parlor and the couple stood under a large horse shoe made of pink and white flowers. The front and back parlors were decorated in pink and white, and the hall in red. Only the immediate friends and relatives were present.

They Want to Go.

Yes, all the telephone and telegraph girls want to take that trip to Highland Springs. When they read the account of the beautiful ride over hills and through villages and across rugged mountains, that they would have, and then the two weeks good time, each and every one made up their minds to be at the head of the list on August 1, and it will be nip and tuck from this time on as to who will be the winners. They are in the race and they intend to win out, and the way votes will come in now is a caution. One young lady informed us this morning that she would see that the GAZETTE had a much larger paid up subscription before the end of next month than it has at present, and that at the end of that time she would call for her credentials to go to the Springs, because she knew that she would be at the head of the list. The other young ladies feel the same way so it will be a battle royal from now on.

MURDER WIIL OUT.

Five Tramps Arrested Near San Leandro.

WITH THEIR GARMENTS COVERED WITH BLOOD.

They are Identified as the Assailants of the Chinese Near Lake Merritt.

Blood Stains Were Found.

Blood-stained clothing worn by a number of tramps arrested yesterday at San Leandro led to suspicions that they were implicated in the assault and robbery of two Chinese last Sunday night at a hut on the banks of Lake Merritt. The men arrested gave the names of Joseph Williams, Charles Carson, Thomas Keenan, John Fink and John Martin. They were taken before the Chinese, who identified the first three as the assailants. Fink and Martin will be held, pending further investigation, as their clothing was stained with what the police said was blood.

For several weeks past numerous small burglaries along the San Leandro road have been reported. The officers think the five men in custody are the thieves. The police have several witnesses who saw men loitering about the Chinese premises on Sunday night, and in a general way the trio pointed out by the Mongols answer the description of the robbers.

The prisoners are all typical tramps and profess to know nothing of the brutal attack on the laundrymen.

Will Try Again.

Chief of Police Lloyd and Sergeant Hodgkins, the two men who made such a desperate fight to hold the gold-brick swindlers so that they might answer for their crimes, are etermined that the men shall yet be convicted. The police are making a strong complaint that the attorney for Root in the recent trial did not state the facts in his address to the jury

"When Judge Nusbaumer was making his address to the jury," said Sergeant Hodgkins, "he asserted that I had arrested two innocent men with Gordon, alias 'Big Foot.' This is not true, and I am sure that Judge Nusbaumer knew it at the time that he made the statements. He also said that when I arrested Root I arrested an innocent man with him. The man I arrested with Root was Joe Leake, alias C. H. Hill, alias many other titles. He is an ex-convict whose picture is in many rogues galleries, and who is a member of this same gang, which Judge Nusbaumer very well knew at the time.

The police are determined to push the cases, despite all of the money that the gold-brick men are spending around Oakland.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

There has been a great deal of talk since the adjournment of the St. Louis Convention in the Democratic and mug-wump papers about the number of people that are leaving the Republican party on account of the gold plank in the platform.

We expected this before the convention met for we know that there were always a certain class of people who could not, and would not, be satisfied no matter whether the convention declared for gold or for silver. When the Democratic Convention meets the same result will be announced, and probably the delegates of several States will walk out of the Convention.

One of the principles of this government is that the majority rules. There are 50,000,000 of people in the Eastern, Middle and New England States who believe in a gold standard and their representatives so declared in the late convention, and a plank was inserted in the platform to that effect. At the Democratic Convention to be held at Chicago next month, the delegates from these same States will demand the same plank, and if it is not inserted the people will vote the Republican ticket.

In all of the great manufacturing States, the question of gold or silver cuts but a very little figure at the present time. What they want is a protective tariff that will make it possible to have money of some kind no matter what it is so long as it has a purchasing power. The mechanics and laboring classes of our own State want protection first and, consequently, they will vote for McKinley and Hobart. The ratification meetings being held throughout the country show that if there are any depletions in the Republican ranks, they have been more than recovered by voters from the ranks of other parties.

If it be true, as these bolters claim that McKinley has no chance to be elected and they believe what they claim, we cannot understand their reasons for [illegible]

A GOOD APPOINTMENT

The Board of Trustees made a wise move on Monday last, when they passed the pure food ordinance and selected Dr. Rowell as food inspector. Every well regulated city has such an inspector and such an ordinance and there is no town in the country that needs it more than does Berkeley.

Situated as we are, so close to San Francisco and Oakland our town is constantly invaded by peddlars, who purchase for almost nothing articles of food that are utterly unfit for human food and then sell it about town to the poorer classes of our people who buy it because it is cheap, not knowing that it is injurious to the health of themselves and their families.

A case in point came under our notice about one month ago, when Deputy Marshal Rawson arrested a couple of young men who were peddling a vile concoction which they claimed was coffee. They were taken before Justice Lord, and Dr. Rowell was called, who analyzed the stuff and declared it to be unfit for food or drink and in fact poisonous. The young men could not be held as the ordinance although it had been passed to print had not been finally passed.

'The Marshal and his deputies have on several occasions detected peddlers selling goods that they had every reason to believe were injurious, but as the parties doing the peddling had complied with the law so far as procuring a license, the officers could do nothing.

We would not have had anything to say in reference to this ordinance were it not for the fact that an unsigned communication was received at this office condemning the Board of Trustees for passing such an ordinance and also that a number of people have spoken to us about the reckless expenditure of the peoples money by the Board, and citing as an instance the $25 per month that is to be allowed Dr. Rowell as Food Inspector.

We do not believe that these people desire Dr. Rowell to give his services to the town for nothing, and we know that the small sum that he is getting will not pay him for his time.

Instead of condemning the Board for the passage of this law and the appointment of inspector, the business men and the people should commend them.

Our business men do not keep impure food for sale, but they lose thousands of dollars each year because peddlers are allowed to hawk impure articles about town and sell them for one-half or less than what the pure articles cost. The taxpayer and house holder should hail the ordinance with joy because it will save them doctors and perhaps undertakers bills.

THE END OF CORBETT.

The GAZETTE has no use for prize fighters nor no sympathy for any of the ilk when they are defeated, consequently it can extend no sympathy to James Corbett who last night was knocked off his pedestal by a brutal sailor named Sharkey.

James Corbett at one time was a respectable young man. He received a good education, through the hard labor of his mother and father, and when he reached manhood he held a good position in a San Francisco bank. He was married and was living happily, and in the vigor of his young manhood he was a representative Native son of California. He joined the Olympic Club and became an adept in the art of boxing and sparring, and he was finally matched in friendly bouts with different amateurs. This led to arranging matches with professional sluggers. He was finally induced to fight with Peter Jackson a negro pugulist, and after a long drawn battle the fight was declared a draw. As Jackson was desirous of defeating Sullivan who was styled the Champion of the World, and Corbett had stood so long against him and had gotten the best of the fight, even though it was called a draw he allowed his friends to persuade him that he could easily defeat Sullivan. He listened to these words and finally he and Sullivan came together with the result that Corbett was declared the Champion of the World.

From that time his career has been a downward one. The wife that had stood by him in adversity and who suffered ostracism from the friends that had known her in her youth, and remained true to him because she loved him, was thrown over for another. From that time on his downward fall has been more swift, and last night he reached the bottom.

The plug uglies and the pugs that have heretofore frowned upon him will now give him the marble heart and the glassy eye and he will hereafter be treated with contempt.

Instead of being a man among men who is respected by all alike, he is now a social outcast and will go out of public life unwept, unhonored and unsung.

The man who was victorious last evening, is a man who never had a chance to become anything. He is of the lowest order, a man of brute strength with no knowledge of higher manhood. He will shine in pugilistic circles for a short time and then, well, he too will drop out of sight.

It was thought that such exhibitions of brute strength and science would not be any longer tolerated in this country, but under the plea that a portion of the proceeds would go to charity the fight was allowed much to the disgrace of San Francisco, and its officials.

A PEAN TO THE PUMPKIN.

How dear to my heart
Is the old yellow pumpkin!
When orchards are barren
Of stuffin for pies,
When peaches and apples
Have both been a failure
And berries of no kind
Have greeted our eyes—
How fondly we turn
To the fruit of the cornfield!
Only fools these disdain—
The old yellow pumpkin,
The mud covered pumpkin,
The big-bellied pumpkin,
That make such good pies!

LOVE IN THE DESERT.

One day a boy came running to his father with a book. "What does this word mean?" he asked, for he believed that his father knew all the world and most of the things beyond. The parent believed that, too, and that is how the child had come to imbibe the idea. The man looked and saw the word "love." "Do you know what that word means, papa?" asked the boy.

"Oh, yes," said the father. And he began thinking. He thought for a long time, for there were so many things love is that he hardly knew where to begin defining. And the longer he remained silent the harder it seemed to find a beginning. "It is difficult to answer," he observed, and the boy interrupted him.

"When we find a difficult problem at school," he said, "we go to the rule. What is the rule about love?"

The father looked at him, but did not answer. He thought. Then he gazed anxiously about, and out through the window he saw a man passing.

"Ah," he said, "there is Mr. Brown, and I want to see him."

And he hurried out to speak to the man; and the boy never heard what love is or what is its rule.

Ford, being quite satisfied that the story was a lie from the beginning and that his search for the wonderful lost desert tribe would result in no benefit to the Smithsonian institution, stopped to rest in the shade of the water wagon, the wheels of which were sunk 18 inches into the roasting sand.

"Look out," he yelled to one of the drivers, "or this Nevada sun will get action on you and you will pop like corn! Lord, isn't it hot!" And he looked about at the blistering white and blue and cudgeled out of his memory certain verses:

And when grim spirits come to that curs'd land,
To be where wanderers fell,
They look in terror at the burning sand
And hurry back to hell—

"And that's desert Nevada, and where we are driving and swearing and sweating through it to find the desert tribesman, who is a lie."

"By the powers, it isn't a lie!" yelled Graves, his assistant. "Look!"

"A Chinese boy!" roared Ford. "And, ye gods, a redheaded Chinese boy, and on a camel, and in Nevada!"

Hong Foy was a dismal failure. McGoggin told him so daily. He could not tamp Southern Pacific ties half as well as Yo Heave, or whatever the pockmarked Chinaman's name was, and Fon Kee could almost carry a "60 pound to the yard" rail by himself, while Hong Foy, being young and pale and calm, found it difficult to lug even the spike maul or the pinch bar. Wherefore the investment of the Southern Pacific Railroad company in Hong Foy was denominated by Mike McGoggin, the section foreman, as a weird and wonderful failure—only McGoggin used words of the same import, but of different pronunciation. Hong Foy, however, could cook, and he showed Maggie McGoggin how to make a soup out of potato sprouts which McGoggin declared to be the triumphant work of the devil. Soup, by the way, is a thing not to be experimented on when the section boarding house is at a place in Nevada where the water is brought in a tank from a station 80 or 100 miles away. McGoggin appreciated the soup, and because of it refrained for two weeks from discharging Hong Foy. But on a Saturday night of the month of June, in the year 1881, he threw a bolt at Hong Foy, hit him with a crooked spike and made a run to the toolhouse to get a wrench to kill him with. He had seen Maggie when she kissed the young Chinaman in the kitchen.

In the shade of the toolhouse, after McGoggin had retired, Hong Foy crept like a dog which had been whipped out of its kennel but knows not where to go. He knew two lines of steel over which Chinamen labored, while a redheaded white man swore volubly at them. He knew a blue horizon, and these things were all he knew in that land—excepting the sun. Where could he go? As he leaned dejectedly against the toolhouse and thought of his love making, he wept, and weeping, Maggie found him. Hong Foy had not dreamed of the future, and had not expected the coming of the girl. He had expected to sleep in the toolhouse that night and be beaten again in the morning. But Maggie had planned. The best part of her plan was that she had brought a huge bottle, and it had water in it. "We will go that way," she said, pointing out into the desert.

It is not so bad to walk all night through the desert if you are sure you are going to have shade in which to rest the next day. But the next day came, and as Maggie and Hong Foy looked about them all they saw was what a couple of ants in a plasterer's box of lime see. Far, far, far away, round about and near it was white. And it was so flat that they seemed to look up out of a basin to a brim which was white and blue, and the alkali and the sky nestled so close to each other and the sky arched over as though it were the roof of the plain in such wise that Maggie thought they might as well have been imprisoned in the shell of a monster egg—only it would have to be the biggest egg and biggest shell ever created, and there would be room for only one of such like in the world. The sun was beautiful in the early morning, and there were roses in the desert east just as there are roses in the east of the orchard land. The sun looked on them with a friendly rotundity for an hour, and then he frowned, and the frown was of white heat. And sleepily they plodded on, searching for a brush big enough to cast two square feet of shade.

They had no means of telling time other than by the sun, but the girl knew the secrets of the sun and knew it was 10 o'clock when the pale, calm face of Hong Foy looked into hers with a dumb piteousness, and he sank in a swoon. Hurriedly the girl uncovered his head and saw for the first time the great, jagged, ragged hole made by that bent spike thrown by her father. The iron had dug deep, but the Chinaman had plastered the wound with the clean waste taken from the toolhouse and had wrapped his cue around it. Maggie regarded the hurt with a little bit of womanly horror, and then she thought of how her lover had walked all that night through the sands with his head wrecked by her father's effort and had not intimated that he was injured at all.

"He is worth it," said Maggie. And tenderly she dressed the wound, washing it with the precious water Hong Foy had carried in the great bottle. "He is worth it."

If you would have to guess at the smallest part of that awful journey go out on the Southern Pacific to the place where the temperature is normally at 140 in June at 11 o'clock in the daytime, where the air is so hot that it curls itself up, where the alkali is baked into powder finer than the finest powder known to medicine, and without the slightest breath of air to agitate it sifts and scatters about over the face of the earth, being drawn up by the sun just as you have heard of water being drawn up. It will be an unpleasant ride to you, for you will leave your coat at Ogden and your raiment along the right of way with great persistence, until in the middle of the desert you will be a disgrace and will belong in the same epoch as Adam and Eve, but you will not think of Adam and Eve, for they lived where water was and grass and trees and blossoms, and it would make you insane to think of those as you looked out on the writhing blue lines of mountains millions of miles away. Mountains which you see here this moment and which are gone when you look again. And beating, beating, beating with a might that makes your head thump is the great world consuming sun.

Yes, if you would like to guess about Maggie and Hong Foy—the crippled Hong Foy—and their 12 days' parching, famishing, agonizing journey until they walked out of death and into a green line of paradise which ran along a clear river, you must go there and do it for yourself. And at the end of the journey, if you ever get to the end of it, perhaps you will fall fainting and deathlike at the margin of the stream as Hong Foy did, or perhaps you will drop on your knees and pray as did Maggie.

* * * * * *

"The only thing in the cabin," said Graves, "which plainly was not made out of the things hereabout is a great bottle, which is apparently for water. I wonder where it came from?"

"I don't," said the driver of the water wagon. "What I want to know is about that there humpy lookin camel beast that the boy met us on. Tell me where that thing came from and I'll go home satisfied."

"They don't know themselves," said Ford. "They only know he came in here one day, and the woman says he was sent by God to help the Chinee haul wood in winter time, but the Chinaman insists that he was created out of the alkali or something, from what I gather in talking to him, as a special gift of his joss. The boy says nothing. I consider that beast the greatest object lesson in the conciliation of religious disputes that I ever struck, for while holding these different views they don't quarrel about him. The real explanation is probably that he is the offspring of some of those camels the United States government bought over from Africa several years ago for use in the Arizona army posts, but which turned out a failure and were let loose to roam where they would."

"I suppose," said Graves, "that you will say in your report that the redheaded, half Chinese kind is the natural child of the desert?"

"Yes. If this land of heat and hardship is ever to be peopled, I think that will be the breed for it!"

"Did it ever strike you," said Graves to Ford, after they had got back to civilization, "how that Chinese friend of yours and his wife and child out there in that desert are so fond of one another?"

"Graves," said Ford, "the word 'love' always seemed to me to be a sort of a sickly one for a grown man to use in talking to another, but do you know that is what I would call that case? I don't think I'd say fond."

"I don't understand it at all," Graves observed.

"Well, you know there's no rule for that kind of thing, old man. Love is something you can't cipher out like your latitude and your longitude."—Chicago Record.

A Mystery of the Mails.

In the mail delivered at his West Philadelphia residence the other day William May, the well known ship chandler, discovered a most remarkable document. It was an invitation to his own wedding, which occurred in 1867, and where the missive has been during the intervening 29 years is a matter of no little mystery. It was addressed to a friend of former years, who then resided at 833 Wharton street. Considering its age, the envelope is in a very good state of preservation, although completely covered with hieroglyphics added by postal officials. The invitation card, while yellow with age, gives little evidence of its 29 years of strange existence.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Struggling Young Author.

"I have thought of a scheme for getting rich," said the struggling young author, "and that is to save the money that I would otherwise spend in sending out manuscript to the publishers and for their return, and put it out at interest, instead; thus forming a sort of a sinking fund for my old age. I think there may be something in this."—New York Sun.
